

Daily Reflection for February

with

The Divine Mother

There are those of my children who have gone forth from the heart of my being and who are now incarnate upon earth. And it is to you that I speak these words.

This earthly living has been changing and, in truth, is about to change more than you have been experiencing. I am not speaking of horrific events. Neither am I speaking of wars or the effects of war-like energies. You might say that what I am about to speak is most important. And even though there might be an intellectual debate about “what is important”, still I say, this is important. Hear my words.

There comes upon earth the frequencies and activating of those encodings that the earth has held within her being, waiting for those matching frequencies to occur within the inhabitants upon her being.

You, my dear children, hold those frequencies. And as you have been awakening, the encodings within the very cell structure of who you are have been activating and aligning themselves. You have felt this alignment of being and in answer, you have changed. You have been able to release your previous way of understanding yourself and your purposes. You have listened to your inner most being and begun to discern something wonderful, something magical, and something powerful. You have begun to recognize the truth of who you really are.

And it is within this truth that you have begun to emerge... to your own self. At times your emergence to yourself has been a challenge, as the external cause and effect no longer matched the essence of who you were discovering yourself to be. And at other times, the external world danced its song in celebration of the truth emerging from within that called human nature.

You began to recognize, more and more, that you were and are a beautiful spirit, holding within it the avenue to the all-knowing of truth itself; and to also recognize that you were residing within a human nature. And that human nature had been living and doing his or her best to discern the right direction, the best decision, and a way that would prove to be fulfilling.

Some human natures did develop a manner of living that produced fulfillment in many ways, while other human natures resided in the density of the sleep state and struggled mightily within survival's grasp.

Yet ALL human natures, in its human beingness, did very well in its survival... until. Until what? My dear children, until your emergence! Your beautiful human nature, who could only reside as best it could in survival's grasp, continued to live, to journey, to grow, to understand spiritual truths... all until you were ready to emerge and to be, to be fully incarnate. And your emergence couldn't occur until the frequencies upon earth and within earth's encodings were activated, as they are now.

Do you see, my children? You have been freed. What does that mean? It means that you are no longer necessarily contained within that wonderful human nature. You are awake, as awake as your human nature could never propose to be even in its greatest efforting. And you know that awakening and the awakening process is not something that can be made to occur. You know that your awakening and your emergence is something that occurs by letting go of the efforting and by embracing truth as it flows forth from your innermost self to your conscious knowing.

And now, here you are. You are emerging more and more, even though some of you have believed that you are fully emerged, the truth remains that emergence is a continuing process. Why? As your wonderful earth continues to open her portals and release those frequencies that hold the most expanded truths, and as there are those who reside incarnate upon earth who are awakening as are you; then! Then there can be the full expression of not only who you are, but a full expression of wholeness of being.

And what is wholeness of being but the conscious knowing that all beings are One Being. The conscious knowing that there is no such thing as separation the whole. The conscious knowing that one breath is all breaths. The conscious knowing that the love that you feel, that you know, of which you are becoming more and more familiar... is the fabric of creation itself.

My dear children, as you continue to emerge, you are then gifted with the conscious knowing of creation and those manners of projecting into the seeming illusion of physicality that fulfillment that brings not only joy to your heart and earthly journey, but also brings fulfillment to those who are reaching out, reaching out and asking to be relieved of survival's grasp.

And here you are. You are those ones who are able, more and more, to breathe your breath, to expand your loving heart and allow your love to flow forth to those who are reaching out. And it is within your love, within your compassion that I do reside.

Together can you all bring to earth that which has been called the real paradise, that manner of residing that incarnates love's warm embracing. And it is that incarnating of love's warm embracing that is the core portal, opening for creation to form in the moment, fulfillment beyond concepts of fulfillment, health beyond the knowing of perfect health, and the return to one... while incarnate. Do you see? The return to one while incarnate IS the fulfillment of all purposes.

And you, my children, are here to not only participate in this grand transformation. You are here to revel in it, to feel your own heart expand, to be filled with the perfection of creation as it forms itself in celebration of truth, in celebration of who you are, and in celebration of the fulfillment of your needs before they are even able to reside as a need. Fulfillment then resides in the moment, always.

All fulfillment that you have reached toward, that you have tried to make manifest, already lives and awaits your letting go in order to receive.

You are most amazing, my children. Most amazing. As you have a phrase upon earth, I speak it also: the best is yet to come. And it is the best, my dears, that already exists, has always existed, and is simply waiting... waiting for the limited parameters residing in those beliefs to be released... beliefs of separation from the whole, in separation from fulfillment, those beliefs that efforting will force fulfillment to be made manifest... yes, your fulfillment is now and has always been in the moment... just for you.

I am with you always. In truth, we cannot be apart. We are as One. Until we speak again, I am your Divine Mother.
