

Greetings... I am your Divine Mother

...and I come forth to speak with you during this time of great change, challenges to individuals, and during this time of great transformation wherein the old gives way to the new and the new is more fulfilling than could be expected.

Upon the planet earth there are several factors that flow forth in order to compete for the power and control of earth's populace. Yet I, your Divine Mother, say to you that none shall win this battle for control... 'cept those who have been the object of control. You, my dear children, are becoming more and more free, even as we breathe this breath together.

The reason that you are becoming more and more free... free from the old, as I have said... is because you are daring to let go of your grasp on to something that no longer fulfills you. And in the daring, you have come to realize that you will not be losing anything. Perhaps that has been a surprise to you.

In the past, when there has been a letting go of something, that something or that way of being has dissolved or disappeared, leaving you with the feeling of emptiness. Yet now, letting go of the old holds within it a different meaning and result.

When you hold on to something lest it disappear, you prohibit its reforming according to your needs. You believe that holding on to something – whether it is an object, way of living, plan, employment, relationship, or more – will keep it to you. In some instances, holding on to several plans, you seem to believe, will give you those options, perhaps one day, as you have the phrase. Yet I say to you, you are in error within those beliefs. Hear my words, oh my children!

Release your grasp... your grasp upon everything. Where in the past you held on to a goal, today I say to you, release that holding on. You needn't repeat your goal or even say it aloud more than once. And again I say, as I have long ago, everything is manifesting for you, everything is arranging itself according to not only your needs, but also your joyful fulfillment. When you hold on to a plan or circumstance or even an object for fear of loss, you are causing the entire manifesting to be as if staid, as if on hold... waiting for the freedom to flow forth for your fulfillment. Do you see, my children? Do you see?

Then the new is much more than a refreshed presentation of the old. The new, as I have phrased this current process of transformation, is what you might call totally different in that it is formed with the essence of creation... that essence that before this time could not form itself incarnate. You might be wondering why such forming could not be present until now. And the answer is that the vibrational frequencies upon your planet and within the consciousness of its inhabitants are able to maintain its integrity while such expanded truth flows forth to present itself incarnate.

Perhaps you have been having hints or recollections of something that you longed to do... long ago, perhaps tens of years ago... and now such a longing is resurfacing. Now, my children, the vibrations are able to produce for you the fulfillment of that longing. Yet I caution you to refuse to attach to an old dream that never was made manifest. You have changed. Your manner of participation with creation has changed. Again and again, ask yourself what are you called to do. You may not have an answer to this self-questioning; yet no one can answer this question for you.

It is time for you to open more and more to your own awareness, time for you to look deep into your own spirit, past your identity or persona, and discover the truth of who you are. And it is then that you will begin to feel the pull toward something... and then more and more that something will develop into a calling that you cannot deny.

Again I caution you. The call isn't necessarily moving to another location, changing a relationship, or beginning new employment. Instead, it is a different way of experiencing your lifely journey, your unfolding spiritual awakening. And it is within this different way that you will discover your fulfillment. Remember, my children, the external rearranging is not the answer to fulfillment. It is only rearranging. And again that is to say that changing your physicality is not wrong; more so, it is best when it is a result of an inner change. Change yourself and your external world begins to shift and change for you. You have heard those words many times from many beings.

Then in this day, begin to ask yourself what you are holding on to. What situation, what plan, what condition, what relationship, what yearning, even what geographical location, what possessions... anything. And then, when you imagine letting go of that holding on, also place within your heart that sigh of relief... knowing... yes, knowing that you are not losing anything. More so, you are opening yourself to the fulfillment that has been waiting for the opportunity to be made manifest... for you... and for all.

When you participate in this process, you are again forging the way for those who are fearful of such letting go. Yet you are the forerunners and you cannot hold back... simply because you seek adventure. Adventure resides within the nature of your being. As do I.

You are my children and reside within the heart of my being... always.

I am your Divine Mother.
