

Channeled Reflection for August 2018 with Teacher

Greetings lovely beings! Here we are at the beginning of a new month and you... you are in the midst of entering into a new journey. Now you might not think that you are, so let's have a little chat about that, shall we? Oh I'm not here to convince you of anything, but I am here to assist you to step into a journey that you really truly enjoy... beyond a doubt.

Now when I say these words you might roll your eyes and think that you have heard this so many times before, but this isn't the same. You have not heard what I have to say to you. So stay with me and find out what this is all about.

Here are the words that you have heard before, followed by something new and wonderful. In order to really enjoy your life, you will need to know who you really are - that's the familiar statement. Here's the rest.

This new phase of your journey is all about daring. First there is the daring to once again dream, dream or reflect upon something that you'd like to be doing, something that calls to you and fills you with that creative force, an energy that carries you along as you participate in your new-found joy.

So then, let's take a moment right here and right now to just ask yourself what is your dream? Oh I know you've done this in the past as part of a manner of manifestation. We're not talking about that reason. This is deeper, bigger.

Just take some deep breaths, pause for a moment in your busy day, and ask yourself what is your dream, what would you dare to dream for yourself? And once you have the first dream for yourself, ask again, what is the dream after that? And once more, what is the dream after that?

You see, sometimes we tend to have a little dream, one that we could call a hope, yet we don't put much faith into it... why? Why don't we now put much faith in our dreams? Well the answer is clear, my dears. You have given up dreaming because you are tired of them not happening. You are tired of disappointments. Yes, there have been some wonderful happenings in your life, but if you think about them, it seems they were in the past... or were too brief, just like a mini vacation; good but too short.

So then, what can you do to change that attitude or message to yourself about your dreams? This is the easy part. Begin again. Or, better stated: begin anew. That's the daring that I've been talking about, the first ingredient in shifting your journey to one that is so very joyful that you have to dance a little... or a lot.

So then, once again, just take this moment to dare to dream and then to dream about after that fulfillment and then after the next fulfillment. Why am I asking you to follow that progression? Well, my dears, I would like you to really get to the point. By that I mean that it is time to unleash the hidden goal within your spirit and one way is to continue to use your imagination and create a wonderful dream for your lively journey and then to follow that dream with another and another. This process is so very simply, yet my dears it will assist your attitudes or disparaging to loosen and allow your real dream to unfold before you, to allow your real dream to dare to travel into your unencumbered consciousness.

You see, my dears, it is natural to have some negative thinking going on while living upon earth as it is residing now. And you have good techniques to change your negativity, even if it is subtle, to something that can be positive, to something that can lighten your heart. And I am most proud of you for that efforting.

Yet I would like to see you be way beyond all of that. I would like to see you doing what you came here to do and the first ingredient is your own personal fulfillment of being, your own personal foundation upon which resides real joy. So that you are not longer waiting for the other shoe to drop. And yes, some of you have given up that way of thinking, yet others are secretly holding on to not daring simply because you do not want any more disappointment. And that's not a crime, my dears, but it is limiting your journey a bit.

All right now, once you have dared to dream upon the dreams and have realized that you really do not know what to dream next, then oh then, you are right in the present moment, right here and right now.

You see, the illusion says that you must have fulfillment externally before you can internally be fulfilled. And that is what might be called a great untruth, yet everything everything about the external world calls you to believe that. It is untrue.

Yes, here we are again talking about being fulfilled from the inside out, yet don't toss aside your opportunity to receive the little gift that I have wrapped in this talk. Stay with me a little longer.

What is inner fulfillment anyway? It can't be compared to outer fulfillment. It can't be compare to the feeling of success. It can't be compared to a great relationship. It can't be compared to anything external. So what is it? This.

When you sit quietly and be only with your own self, when you set aside all the wants and needs, when you set aside all of those dreams -- though I am not saying they are invalid -- and when you set aside thinking about yesterday or tomorrow, you are daring in a very big way. You are daring to be real to your own self. Now I'm not talking about meditation. This is different.

When you set aside everything and be with your Self and allow that peace that lives inside of you, in that moment, you are feeling what it is like to be fulfilled on the inside. Do you see?

Inner fulfillment doesn't rest upon words or descriptions. It does rest upon your experience of being with your Self and nothing else. And when you dare to do this for longer than a quick moment to see if Teacher has really delivered, then you are daring, daring to go beyond the known and the illusion given to you of who you are supposed to be. You are daring to become real, so very real to your own Self that you wonder what all the fuss was about.

Now this you, the one you connect with when you proceed in this simple experience, is the one who will dare to dream for the external journey and the dream will be from your inner Self, from your inner knowing.

Now doesn't that make sense? You see, how can you dream an inner fulfillment while you haven't connected with that beautiful real Self? You cannot. Any dream resting upon the foundation of the illusion will only deliver a flimsy fulfillment, the one that you are accustomed to recognizing and have taken to your heart, believing that you will never really be fulfilled.. on the inside.

And now you know. That flimsy fulfillment that never really gives the dream fulfillment is all part of the illusion, the one that you have been taught to trust... and it is so very untrustworthy!

Yet, your dream, the flowing forth from your real Self, is so very capable of fulfillment that you can nearly shiver with the thought of it.

So, my dears, why not give this simple simple participation a try... more than once, so that it becomes a regular participation and gives to you the experience of connecting with who you really are and what dream is begging to be recognized... so that it can fill your conscious awareness and become the real dream and then the real dream fulfilled? Yes, that is what this little talk is all about and that is the real treasure.

I am most fond of you, my dears, and I believe you can give this gift to yourself... even within the very next moment!

Until we speak again, I am Teacher.